JANUARY 2019 – DECEMBER 2019

This micrograph shows a cross-section of a metal joint, likely a weld or brazing interface. The central region is a dark, irregularly shaped area representing the filler metal. This is surrounded by a lighter, more uniform region, which is the base metal. The interface between the filler and the base metal appears somewhat irregular, suggesting a diffusion-bonded or cast joint. The overall texture is grainy, typical of a metal microstructure.
